EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS

MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19. We learn from the Wheeling Register that "one E. T. Moore, a "loyal" editor, and the incumbent of an indefinite number of petty offices in Kanawhs county," was lately charged with forging the endorsement on a number of witnesses' certificates. The matter was brought before the Grand Jury of Kanawha, when it was ascertained that the certificates had been deposited at the Auditor's Office, at Wheeling. As it was necessary that they should be present to prove the forgery, no action was taken upon the case at that time. It has since been ascertained, that as soon as the Auditor was informed that his friend was likely to get into trouble about the matter, he sent them track to a "friend" to be delivered over to air. Moore, "if it were proper," and

The United States overthrow the Empire by refusing recognition. The valiant Mexican people either submitted, or kept up a guerilla warfare against an enemy not one-tenth as large as themselves. Whenever a regular battle was fought they were whipped, and would to-day, so far as their own exertions are concerned, have been subjects of Maximillan, and not citizens of a republic. We dislike bombast on principle, but when so entirely false, it becomes silly.

He avers that during the last sighteen years he has married upwards of 5,000 couple-happhly, who, had it not been for him, would still have been pining in single misery. He points out that marriage by negotiation is the rule in most foreign contries and in all royal families, and urges that unions thus brought about are productive of as much real happiness as those known as love matches, which young people make for themselves, in which the mostlew power is unusually a straight nose, smooth wailzing, a neat foot and ankle, an exorbitant chignon, or a heavy mustache.

That one who believed the Southern Rebellion just and right, and therefore desired its ancess, should hate he mation's creditors and wish to see the mation's creditors and wish to see the mational debt repudlated, is as natural as life. For that debt represents the defeat and roin of "The Lost Cause," Money and men were allke indispensible to its overthrow. Had every able-bodied male in the loyal States shouldered his musket and followed the Union drum, still the Rebellion could not have been put down without money, and a great deal of it. The fleets that blockaded the coast, and bombarded the Rebel fortresses, were built or bought with money. Thousands of monsier cannon were cast, mounted and supplied with aumunition; millions of muskets and hundreds of millions of cartridges were made up—all costing money. The naked pay of our armies required hundreds of millions. Throughout the war, we were ever borrowing, until, by the time it closed, we had roiled up a debt of twenty-seven hundred and fifty millions of dollars, whereof we have paid off two hundred millions of principal, leaving twenty-five hundred millions; and will chest them out of their dues if they ever have the power. And they have not the wit to conceal their dues if they ever have the power.

will possibly be announced as particeps crimints in a glaring fraud upon the State treasury, and perhaps, also, an untold sum of money will be reported as missing from the public funds.

There is no telling where the gross exaggeration will stop in the hands of desperate partisans, bent on the manufacture of capital for the advancement of their foriorn hopes.

It is difficult to conceive of a more groundiess accusation in regard to an upright and faithful public officer, than the calumny asserted in the foregoing extract. The atterneut made is almost as near the exact reverse of anything like truth as if the whole story, from beginning to end, had been concocted in the brain of the writer.

We said to him, "Buy your greenbacks as cheep as you can, and we will gladly give you, for every greenback dollar, our promise to pay a gold dollar by-and-by, with six per cent. interest meantime." He ac-cepted our offer, and our triumph has made his venture a lucky, one; while those who invested in Confederate serin have lost every penny.

The case of the white men, who have always been both voters and jurymen, is not so fally reported. A late speech of Gen. Brisbin tells this story:

"While in command in Kentucky, a court-martial was assembled at this place, and forty-six white Kentucky, a court-martial was assembled at this place, and forty-six white Kentucky, a court-martial was presented to Colonel Commings, the President of the Court Their counsel entered a plea in their behalf, which was presented to Colonel Commings, the President of the Court Thus for one examination, was found to contain six names and forty marks, and which, on examination, was found to contain six names and forty marks, and which, one examination, was found to contain six names and forty marks, and which, according to Dogborry, comes from nature."

Another case is mentioned where, in what is called Blackwood precinct, there were fifty-six voters, of whom "six could read and write, and fifty could not. At the polls it was found and the will cannot schieve the power. Let them gain the ascendancy, and the delit was fight he as fight he ascendancy, and the delit was fight he ascendancy, and the delit was fight he ascendancy and the delit was fight he as fight he ascendancy and the court had to suspend a section that the fight he fig the will cannot achieve the power. Let them gain the ascendancy, and the debt is mere waste paper, and they will never incur the loolish expense of is-suing two billions of fresh greenbacks, merely to make a false precense of pay-ing it.

voting has passed away. There may be something in this, but the negroes and their white friends will frame the new Constitutions for the Southern States and do the first legislating, and if they hold their present purpose and lendership, they will adopt the Tennessee system, and there will be a much roors awarding disfranchisment of see system, and there will be a much more sweeping disfranchisement of white men than under the confiscation acts, and the imposition of such other disabilities as even Brownlow has not attempted. The southern white men must see that those who hold the power at the start will have every inducement so to fix things that they can retain it, and sithough Congress is to pass upon the new constitutions before they can stand, there is no probability that that body will require any greater leniency body will require any greater lenlency toward ex-rebels in the other States, than in Tennessee. They will accept the constitutions made as true expresthe constitutions made as true expres-sions of the popular will, and it will be a long time before the white men of the South can hope for any change. If they mean to have any voice in their State Governments for the next dozen years they will do well to register and vote now. It may be their last chance.
